London "Standard" says

The London "Standard" says on this point: "Men or women who intend to be centenarians in these days must combine something of the old mode of life with something of the new mode of living. They must, while availing themselves of all the scientific discoveries and sanitary appliances of the age, imitate their grandsires in the steady and tranquil habits that prevailed before the invention of locomotives and the telegraph. They must have their eight hours of sleep regularly; they must have intervals of repose and vacancy in the daytime; they must spend a goodly portion of their waking hours in the open air. Nor will that suffice; there will have to be regularity in the hours of their meals and discipline in the ordering of the have to be regularity in the hours of their meals and discipline in the ordering of the dishes of which the meals are composed. We cannot believe that anybody will ever live to 100 who eats a heavy dinner every night of his life at eight o'clock. Champagne in abundance and Bordeaux and Burgundy are to be foreworm by persons who deliberately set before them the attaining of their hundredth birthday. Neither, with such an end in view, would the active life of a politician, a lawyer or a doctor be a sane enterprise. In order to ing, if not severe, at least regular and un-flinching. Most of all, there must prevail in the existence of such a person a tranquil flinching. Most of all, there must prevail in the existence of such a person a tranquil serenity, an unruffled calm. Neither generous passions nor enthusiastic ideals must be allowed admittance. The pulse must never be driven up beyond a certain point, either by work, by anxiety, by fear or by hope. At the same time, mere stagnation will, in all probability, never enable a person to live to 100. There is such a thing as rusting out as well constant.

TO EXHIBITORS.

A large amount in cash is offered in premiums for live-stock at this Fair, for the purpose of encouraging exhibitors and breeders to show their skill in the production of fine animals, to create a healthy competition in the different breeds, call out a large and valuable exhibition of superior animals, that the patrons of the Fair may have an opportunity of examining and comparing their relative values and become better acquainted with the different characteristics of the several distinctive broads. Breeders of New England are cordially invited to compete for the premiums offered, and assist in making a large and fine exhibit of their stock. Every facility will be rendered by the officers of the Society in their behalf.

GENERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

The twenty-third New England Fair, in connection with the Eastern Maine State Fair, will be held in the city of Bangor, Maine, commencing Tuesday morning, August 31, and continuing Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 1st, 2d and 3d, at Maplevood Park, and in Norombega and City Halls.

At the Park an abundance of water will be supplied to all parts of the grounds. Substantial covered stalls and pens will be provided for fifteen hundred animals.

The hotel accommodations in Bangor cannot be excelled in Maine, and boarding houses are in almost every block. The managers of the Boston & Bangor Steamship Company will arrange to lodge and farnish meals for some five or six hundred people on board of their palace steamers. There is ample accommodation for teams, both at the grounds and up town. Then there is no long distance to traverse between the city's brick pave and the fair grounds, as in most places, for Maplewood is barely ten minutes' casy walk from the Bangor House, and approached by a good street. The grounds are of easy access and but a few rods from the railroad station. The twenty-third New England Pair, in connection with the Eastern Maine State Fair,
